The old Midway Post Office from 1897 to 1917. It was operated by William and Mary Watkins.

E. Watkins was appointed postmistress. Her office was located in a small frame store building operated by her husband, William Watkins. They continued their store and post office until 1918 when poor health and failing eyesight forced them to retire.

Because Midway was only a fourth class post office, wages were paid only on a percentage of cancelled stamps, and the pay was small, usually averaging $32 to $37 a month, with a little more at Christmas time.

GOTTLIEB PROBST

Son of Early Settlers

1858-1921

Gottlieb Probst, second son of Ulrich and Anna Barbara Kiener was born in Switzerland, but immigrated to Midway with his family at age fourteen. Sometime thereafter he was stricken with a disease which made walking difficult. However, he was able to play some of the games as he grew up. After being assured by a doctor that his condition could be cured by an operation, Gottlieb agreed to the surgery. The doctor's diagnosis proved to be false for he was never to walk again!

From an ordinary chair Guttel, as he was fondly called, helped his mother in the small store which she ran from part of their home. It was the corner directly across from Nephi Probst's present home, at 115 North 400 West. Candy, Groceries and a few domestic items were all they carried, but the store was a convenient place to which neighborhood children brought eggs to exchange for candy.

When Anna Barbara died, Gottlieb was left alone, so he hired girls from the neighborhood to clean house, tidy the store and help him to wait on customers.

One of the exciting events of the week was the arrival of the candy salesman. (He was none other than George Albert Smith who later became a president of the L.D.S. church). His satchel was filled with samples of many kinds of candy. One of the popular bars was the philbert. It was six inches long and about one-half inch square. The cost? One cent.

Guttel loved people and made them feel comfortable around him. His store became a gathering place for all the young folks and after closing time the young men stayed to play checkers and sing songs. Gottlieb's journal is filled with optimism and almost daily accounts of someone's concern for him. Young brides and grooms visited him on their wedding day, bringing a plate of food from their wedding dinner and showing him their wedding finery. There is never a complaint or a note of self-pitty written on those journal pages.

Guttel's later life was a life of helplessness, but it never seemed to dull his joy in everyday happenings nor his appreciation for those who served him with compassion and love until his death at age sixty-three.
